Island's President Denounces Attack on Davies

U.S. Envoy to Cyprus Shot, Killed by Mob

By The Associated Press
The American ambassador to Cyprus, Roger P. Davies, was shot to death today when a mob of Greek Cypriots attacked the U.S. Embassy in Nicosia to protest American policy in the Cyprus crisis.

Cypriot President Glafcos Clerides announced Davies' death over Cyprus Radio after visiting the embassy. "I denounce this terrible crime against Cyprus in the strongest terms and express my deepest sorrow and sympathy," he said.

Witnesses said at least some of the shots were fired by men known to be members of EOKA-B, the pro-Greek underground guerrilla group that helped overthrow Cypriot President Makarios last month.

A Cypriot woman employe at the embassy was killed and two others working at the embassy were wounded in the attack.

Davies, 53, a veteran diplomat, had been deputy assistant secretary for Near East and Southeast Asian affairs before being assigned to Cyprus on July 10, five days before Makarios was overthrown.

Witnesses said the demonstrators fired at the embassy after U.S. Marines threw tear gas to try to disperse the mob, which moments earlier set Davies' black limousine on fire. The limousine exploded like a bomb when flames reached the gas tank, and black billows of smoke were visible halfway across the capital.

The Greek Cypriots on the island have become increasingly frustrated over Turkish military advances on the island since the Turks invaded it July 20. Last week a blitz-like Turkish assault left the Turks in solid control of the northern third of the island.

The Turks made fresh advances south of Nicosia over the weekend, cutting one of the two major roads between the capital and the south coast and advancing toward the second highway. But a U.N. spokesman said there were no reports of fighting during the night.

In Washington, Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger said Turkey "has gone beyond what any of its friends or sympathizers are prepared to accept." Speaking on the CBS-TV program "Face the Nation," he said the United States would re-examine its position in the Cyprus crisis in view of the "unexpected" Turkish military advances.

Thousands of Americans of Greek descent demonstrated peacefully on Sunday, marching around the White House for four hours to protest U.S. policies on Cyprus. President Ford, who was playing golf at the time, did not see the protest.

Moving south from the Lefka-Nicosia-Famagusta line the Turks established across northern Cyprus last week. Turkish troops seized Pyroi, a Green Cypriot village 10 miles south of Nicosia on the highway from the capital to Larnaca, on the southeast coast.

From Pyroi, the Turkish tanks and infantry moved west toward the highway to Limassol, on the south coast. An earlier report that the Limassol road was cut proved incorrect, but during the night more Turkish tanks and armored personnel carriers crossed the Larnaca road and headed southwest.

The Turkish forces appeared to be heading both for the large Turkish town of Louroujina, four miles away, and the large Greek Cypriot town of Dahali, four miles northwest of Louroujina and only a mile from the Nicosia-Limassol highway. If the Turks cut that highway, the capital's only access to the rest of the island would be by a single-lane dirt road leading south over the Troodos mountains.

Reports that the Turks were encircling Nicosia touched off a second panicky flight from the city on Sunday by the Greek Cypriots. But after the government repeatedly broadcast denials and a late-night appeal by President Glafcos Clerides, the people began to return again today.

Life in the Greek Cypriot quarter of Nicosia began to pick up. More and more shops were opening, and more and more people returned from villages in the mountains.

The government estimated a total of 200,000 Greek Cypriots were refugees from the Turkish advance. It appealed to international relief organizations and foreign governments for help. British officials said possibly 70,000 of the refugees were in the British base area at Dhekalia, on the southwest coast. It said most of these were camping in the open, and the base bakeries are working overtime to provide bread for them.

In Athens, more than 3,000 Greeks demonstrated through much of Sunday night in Constitution Square, chanting "Greece save Cyprus" and "America's Out." When the police moved in with water cannons to disperse the crowd, the demonstrators pelted the police with stones and bottles. Seven policemen were injured, and the police took 23 persons into custody but released 19 of them later.

Subpoena Power to Speed Rights Cases

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Authority to subpoena records during investigation of discrimination complaints gives the Iowa Civil Rights Commission a new tool which officials say will expedite processing of cases.

The subpoena authority was granted to the commission by the 1974 legislature and the Legislative Rules Review Committee approved the rules under which subpoenas can be used.

"This will expedite our investigations in several ways and help us keep our case backlog under control," said Joseph Tate, commission director.

The commission is charged under the Iowa Civil Rights Act with dealing with complaints of discrimination in jobs, housing or public accommodations on the basis of race, creed, color, sex or age.

It has broad powers to seek conciliation of complaints.

hold public hearings and take court action if necessary.

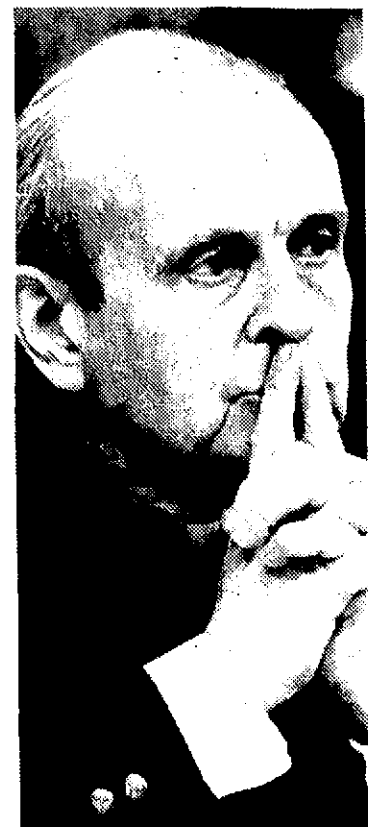

Tate says the case load is so heavy that its investigators need all the help they can get to speed up the handling of cases.

At the end of July, he said, the commission had 1,038 cases that were not closed. Of these, 693 were in the "pre-investigative stage," 270 had been assigned to investigators, 68 were in the process of conciliation and 7 were awaiting public hearing or were in court.

Besides that, Tate said, the number of cases filed is growing each year. There were 444 filings in 1972, 531 in 1973 and so far this year, 340.

How does the new subpoena authority help?

"In the first place, the fact that the authority is on the books will bring about more voluntary compliance with investigators' requests for pertinent records," Tate said.

13 Killed in Highway Accidents

By The Associated Press
Thirteen persons, including four members of one family, died this weekend as a result of traffic accidents on Iowa highways.

The latest reported victim was Robert Dean Callahan, one-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Callahan of rural Marshalltown. The youth died Friday night of head injuries received when he was run over by a truck at the Callahan residence. The death was not reported until Sunday due to difficulty in contacting next of kin.

A two-car collision Friday night near Storm Lake claimed the lives of five persons—four of them from the same family.

The victims were Harold Ohrtman, 47; his mother, Clara Ohrtman, 73; a son, Robert, 12, and a daughter, Barbara, 14, all of rural Fonda. Also killed in the accident was Dennis Rieschl, 22, Manning.

The accident occurred at a county road intersection with Iowa 7 east of Storm Lake.

Two University of Iowa students, Russell Gjovig, 20, Glendale, Calif., and Ronald Arndt, 19, Fairfield, were killed Saturday in a two-car crash on U.S. 63 near Oskaloosa.

Mahaska County officials said the car driven by Gjovig collided with a car driven by James Long, 19, Des Moines.

John Curtis, 17, Cedar Rapids, was killed in a three-car collision on a Cedar Rapids street Saturday. Curtis was a passenger in a car driven by Thomas Franks, 21.

Gerald Hansen, 24, Blair, Neb., was killed Saturday when the car he was driving slammed into the rear of another car on a road about seven miles west of Missouri Valley in Harrison County. Authorities said Hansen was thrown from the car when it overturned in a ditch.

Dennis Howard, 21, Cedar Falls, was killed Saturday.

The hearing, which will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday in the Capitol building, was arranged by Congressman William J. Scherle.

Blacks, Reformers Walk Out of Demo Charter Conference

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Black and reform-minded party members abruptly ended the two-day conference of the Democratic Charter Commission when they walked out, charging party "regulars" were bent on an item-by-item overhaul of reform efforts.

The walkout came Sunday when Doris Hardestry of Rockville, Md., introduced an amendment to an article dealing with selection of delegates to national conventions. It was viewed by reformists as an attempt to reinstate unit rule voting procedures that were discarded six years ago and also seen as the beginning of an effort by the regulars to forge changes throughout the charter.

It was obvious at the opening of the meeting Saturday that the regulars had a 30-vote to 40-vote advantage. Blacks and some white women had threatened a walkout Sunday if the regulars changed an "affirmative action" provision in the proposed charter designed to open party participation to minority groups and women.

That issue was referred to the Mid-Term Convention here in December, in effect, when it was voted that the regulars and reformists each would present two forms concerning affirmative action to be voted on in four months.

The walkout left the session with 73 commission members — 11 short of the quorum required to continue business. Commission Chairman Terry Sanford adjourned the meeting a few minutes later, ruling that the seven articles the commission had not acted on would be referred as drafted to the Mid-Term Convention beginning here Dec. 6.

Sanford, a former North Carolina governor, said Democratic party chairman Robert Strauss was pressured by Congressmen, labor leaders and some governors to stack the commission in favor of conservatives.

"And I don't think there's any question he felt that pressure," Sanford said.

The dissident element vowed to return with reinforcements in December.

Reiterates Strong Defense Stand

Ford Names Roudebush as New Vets Head

CHICAGO (AP) — President Ford today named his "personal friend and former congressional colleague" Richard I. Roudebush of Indiana to be the new administrator of Veterans Affairs.

Ford promised to see that veterans are "not just a digit in a computer system that sometimes goes."

He warned, however, that with America "fighting for its economic life," he would not hesitate to veto any bill, including the pending veterans education bill to control "inflationary excesses."

"I am open to conciliation and compromise on the total amount authorized so that we can protect veteran trainees against the rising cost of living," the President said.

Ford, making the first trip in his new presidency, came to Chicago to address the 75th annual convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Ford, who served in the Navy in World War II, pledged to work for more jobs for veterans, better hospital facilities and a humanized and better-run VA administration. Ford reiterated his commitment to a strong national defense, warning that he would "offer no temptations" to potential adversaries who watch U.S. readiness.

He pledged that "just as America will maintain its nuclear deterrent strength," we will never fall behind in negotiations to control and hopefully reduce this threat to mankind."

Noting that "peace and security require preparedness and dedication," Ford added, "good will must never be misconstrued as a lack of will."

It had been expected that Ford might announce here that he would sign a veterans bill that would provide a 23 percent increase in monthly payments for veterans attending school under the GI bill. The measure has been approved by Senate-House conferees and was expected to pass both houses this week.

Ford's comments here, indicated, however, that he is still looking for some anti-inflationary cuts in veterans' measures and perhaps in the huge defense budget as well.

"If we can send men thousands of miles from home to fight in rice paddies, certainly we can send them back to school and to better jobs at home," the President said.

There was a small welcoming crowd at O'Hare International Airport for the President's arrival. Among several hundred persons on hand were some sign carriers with placards reading, "Welcome President Ford" and "Cook County Republicans welcome President Ford."

Ford said Roudebush, his newly named VA administrator, a former VFW commander in chief, now deputy VA administrator, is "a man who gets things done."
